INAUGURAL GATHERING OF THE MOCK PARLIAMENT WAS HELD AMID SCENES OF GREAT ENTHUSIASM LAST EVENING

Great Pomp and Display Attend First Meeting — Many Supporters For Both Parties Engage In Heated Discussion — French and English Speeches — Progressives Remain In Power.

Last evening, with all due ceremony and ritual, the Mock Parliament was inaugurated. For an hour preceding this epoch-making event, the Union was the scene of much activity: Constitutionalists endeavoring to convince Progressives of their blunders; Ministers and Senators running about distraught in their search for others of their party; and, lastly, to add to this general confusion, the contingent arrived from the Royal Victoria College, and soon political arguments were interspersed with feminine conversation from the northern end of the hall.

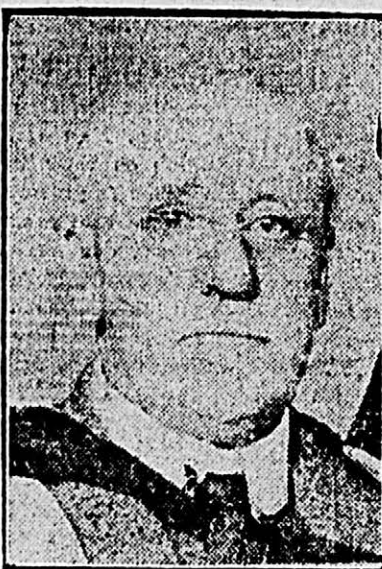

However, both sides of the House soon became filled with supporters, and the meeting gradually took on a semblance of that which it represented—a Parliament. The leaders of both parties were arrayed opposite one another, each group at the head of its following. When the Speaker, Mr. Hackett, had been chosen, all was ready for the entry of His Excellency The Governor-General, in the person of Dean Moyse.

On the entrance of His Excellency, the assemblage rose to their feet, and remained standing until he had proceeded to the chair. The speech from the throne was now read, the content of which is as follows:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate: Gentlemen of the House of Commons: Once more I welcome you to your important duties in this another session of my Parliament.

Canada is passing through this new period of world history with marvelous stability and gratifying success. It is inevitable that depression and unrest should be prevalent following the wake of the recent great world war and during the period of reconstruction following.

GOVERNOR GENERAL.

Dean Moyse.

Since the last session of my Parliament the greatest event in history has transpired, and now that my Parliament is again in session I look forward to the stabilization of the Western world, a speedy adjustment of international difficulties, and the abolition of war that peace and happiness may prevail with unchecked and ever increasing volume throughout the world. I am proud to note the enthusiasm and loyalty expressed by my subjects of the Dominion of Canada to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, during his recent tour through the Dominion; and more especially does it give me pleasure to note his having been honored with a degree from McGill University. His charm of manner, his quick recognition of Canadian ideals, and his endearing personality have won for himself a permanent place in the hearts of the people. His visit has strengthened the bonds of the Canadian nation with the Commonwealth of the British Empire.

I am pleased to note, and I am sure you will share my feeling of pleasure and gratitude, the splendid and signal success on the field of battle of my football team under Field Marshal Shaughnessy and General Montgomery. By crushing in the mud at Stadium Hill and other sectors, the barbarous hordes of Varsity and Queen's they have made a graphic example of those who would dare to challenge the Sovereign supremacy of my University, and have made, and shall continue to make the world safe for civilized athletics.

I wish to commend the Department of Public Works for its alacrity in gathering up leaves in the Fall, and the shovelling of snow from the walks in winter. It gratifies me to learn that you are to continue the construction of the new Welland Canal, and that some other small contracts are to be let soon, thus giving employment to a large number of men at present unemployed. For I view with no little concern the condition of my people who have suffered so much from the exigencies of war. Their condition is far from satisfactory. My Advisers, therefore, are impressed with the necessity for a strong and progressive policy that equal justice may be done. Much needed and long delayed legislation will be laid before you in order that my people may receive such social and material blessings as will make them happy and prosperous people, and the nation of Canada within our British Commonwealth a land reputed for its justice and prosperity.

Representation.

That the voice of my people may be heard in our Legislative Councils, and that they may be fully able to express their opinion on all matters of national importance, a Bill for Proportional Representation will be laid before you for your ratification.

Pensions.

Measures are to be taken for a complete revision of the present scale of pensions for War Widows and Disabled Soldiers in order to place these pensions on a more suitable basis. The rate of pensions will be increased and equalization as between ranks is contemplated.

Taxation.

My government will submit the following measures for taxation, the importance of which I need not point out. Canada's war debt; gratuities and pensions; and the providing for unemployment and reconstruction must be met speedily. In view of the enormous war debt, and that my people may have a chance to pay for the war as my soldiers fought to win it, a Bill will be brought in providing for a Levy on Capital to pay off the War Debt, and such relevant legislation as may be found necessary.

A Bill (a) for the establishment of an income tax to be levied at the source with an added surtax; and (b) for taxation on luxuries, will be presented soon.

Education.

In connection with education my Ministers recognize the urgent necessity of provision for education at this great time in our history, and legislation will be laid before you providing for State grants to Provincial Governments for educational purposes, and to create Dominion Government Scholarships in all our Universities. This, may add, is not only important but essential for the advancement of high learning and efficiency among my people.

Immigration.

An Immigration Bill with such provisions as are necessary, having regard to existing conditions, and providing among other things, for effectually building up the country with desirable people will be submitted for your consideration during this session.

Industrial.

A proposed Act, which I especially commend to your attention, is to be brought in for the purpose of creating an Industrial Court, thus providing machinery for the peaceful settlement of Trades disputes, and promoting harmony in the industrial world; also a Bill for a national insurance covering old age, sickness, widows with children, unemployment, etc., with National Labor Bureaus to facilitate the working of the Act.

Labor.

Proposals are being formulated for fixing a maximum number of hours of employment; instituting a minimum wage; the complete abolition of child labor; and the right of Collective Bargaining.

Tariff.

An Advisory Tariff Commission will be set up to advise Parliament as to the lowest tariff rates practical to the proper running of our industries in view of our changed conditions.

You will be asked to give your assent to a recommendation to the Imperial Parliament that all treaties be passed by Parliaments in session to avoid the possibility of secret treaties, also to give your absolute support to the League of Nations and to reform of the Senate, and Government control of the liquor traffic.

It is with genuine regret that I learn from my Minister of Trade and Commerce of the deplorable dearth of peanuts in our country. Commissions of enquiry have discovered that the said dearth of peanuts is due to the entire year's supply having been largely consumed by the gentlemen students of the Law Faculty.

I am glad to think that in this session you will have for your consideration a Bill to extend my Merchant Marine, and to consolidate it with my railways under separate commissions with a joint Board of Control, and that a system of profit sharing is to be the working basis, together with such other measures as may be found necessary.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate, Members of the House of Commons, I cannot contemplate without concern the continued high cost of living, with all its evil consequences and the distress it is causing throughout the country. The problem of reducing it has received your constant attention and consideration.

In this connection Bills will be introduced to reconsider the prices charged to students for football. Proper and commodious residences to crown the campus with glory, and material assistance to be given to soldier students, including free tuition. Government cows are to be put in charge of McGill to provide cheap milk for Freshmen.

Public Health.

I draw the attention of the Minister of Public Health to the unsanitary and inconvenient arrangement on the drinking fountain in the Arts Building. I view with appreciation the coming legislation on public health relating itself so closely in the efficiency, happiness and contentment of my subjects.

Members of the House of Commons:

The accounts of the last and the estimates for the next fiscal year will be laid before you without delay.

Gentlemen of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

EJECTED FROM HOUSE.

D. Clark Hyde.

a graduate of Arts '17, and now studying at Harvard. Formerly a president of the Lit.

I trust your deliberations will prove a great and continued blessing to the Canadian nation and the British Commonwealth as a whole, and that my Canadian subjects will be a prosperous, contented and happy people.

After the Governor-General had left the House, the Speaker, Mr. Hackett, thanked the Members of Parliament for the great honor they had conferred upon him, and made a few remarks about the Governor-General's speech.

Mr. Reford moved that the business of the House be proceeded with, but owing to the absence of the clerk, he was called to a point of order.

It was moved by Mr. F. O. Peterson that the speech from the throne be adopted. He remarked on the great honor it was for Parliament to have as its Governor-General one who was read of the Arts Faculty of McGill University. He referred to the war and touched on the splendid manner in which Canada had carried herself through those long months of struggle and anxiety. He said that the excitement of battle had been removed, but that to maintain concentration and efficiency sufficient to cope with present day needs, we must retain a high sense of responsibility and public duty. He also said that the present Government favored higher pensions for disabled soldiers and their dependents. In conclusion, he laid stress on the importance of social legislation, which was one of the main platforms of the Progressive Party.

Mr. Mackenzie seconded the motion so ably presented by Mr. Peterson. He said that as a result of the conflict of the Law Faculty.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 30, 1920.

The Necessity of the Military Spirit at McGill

In an appeal recently made to the returned men for their support of the dinner to be given Sir Arthur Currie, the speaker emphasized "the necessity of the military spirit at McGill." This appeal to students for their support has been followed by others. On Wednesday a prominent graduate addressed a meeting called of those interested in sport generally, and although only one sentence referred directly to the dinner, the whole thing was an obvious piece of propaganda for this same thing. Since then some few students have taken the matter up, though, be it noted that the Returned Men's Undergraduate Society refused support.

Both the original promoters and the few students who have taken up the project, are either unable or unwilling to explain themselves. Since the fiasco of the appeal to the returned men, in which the speaker declared the "necessity of the military spirit at McGill," and that "McGill was the first in the field in 1914, therefore it must be in 1920," different tactics have been adopted. We are now told that the dinner is a University affair.

But a notice was inserted in the "Daily" of January 10th asking all "undergraduates who held commissions" to send in their names, since the "information is required in connection with a military dinner." "Military dinner," the assertion that it is a University affair seems curiously contradictory, or shall we consider ourselves already a military academy! Of course, this original notice the promoters of the dinner dismiss lightly now by explaining that it was merely intended to form a committee of ex-officers for the organization of the dinner. But then, why were the names, ranks and units of all undergraduates who held commissions called for? Moreover, if this was the motive, why are graduates of senior rank superintending the arrangements instead of the originally designed committee of undergraduates?

But let us pass on. On January 20th, we read that "Sir Arthur Currie will be here, as the guest of McGill graduates and undergraduates who served overseas." A great change from the attitude of January 10th, when the dinner was to be open only to officers. More lately still it has been decided that "all graduates and undergraduates are to be welcomed. Even the promoters seem to realize that the change from January 20th to the present attitude is quite inexplicable, unless they face the truth, namely: that returned men have refused their support both individually and as a society.

The above is no explanation of the objects of the dinner; a rather devious history is traced. None of the promoters have seen fit to disclose their purpose. We are merely told that it is a University affair, and, therefore, it behooves undergraduates to support it. If we enquire further, we are informed in a confidential tone that if the dinner is a big success the Government will give $300,000 where-with to build a gymnasium. Are we dreaming? For spending a paltry dollar and fifty cents on a dinner we are to receive three hundred thousand dollars! It is ridiculous to think that the Government, which refuses aid to returned students, stigmatizing it as class legislation, should yield up a very considerable sum for attending a dinner. But we seem to remember a rumour which caused considerable consternation last November, to the effect that if the authorities of the University pledged themselves to compulsory military training, the Federal Government would aid very considerably in the erection of a gymnasium. This view is supported by the opinion expressed on the C.O.T.C. that "The Government bids fair to establishing McGill as a great centre of military instruction."

Indeed, it seems only reasonable to believe that there is a plan for the introduction of compulsory military training afoot, since although the promoters of to-night's dinner know that this construction has been put on their purpose they have never categorically denied it, only giving the vague assurance that it is a "university affair."

When the "sports meeting" was addressed on Wednesday, the speaker emphasized the need of money. We quite agree. But however great the need: can we afford to sign away our freedom? Are we prepared to become members of a compulsory C.O.T.C., to be commanded by one who believes in the "necessity of the military spirit at McGill," or other words militarism?

The Mark

Recently a well-known journalist stated that he could always discern the men who had passed through a university. He maintained, not as is usually the case, that he could distinguish them by some idiosyncrasy or other, but that they all possessed a certain degree of philosophy and philosophical method. He thought that they had a greater ability than other people to distinguish the relevancy of matter. They did not get hopelessly entangled in absolutely foreign matter when treating a subject. He did not say that a college education was a trade mark of the accuracy of observations and deductions. But he did maintain that a properly balanced University education did carry with it a certain power of discrimination and above all a decided ability to recognize relevant from extraneous matter.

There are not a few who appear to consider a college education simply as the training of an expert, be it in the classics or in a course of engineering. Whether the subject studied be the one or the other a decided twist is given to the students point of view; ergo, if we follow our journalist, this is a wrong theory of higher education. He maintains that a touch of philosophy is essential to an educated mind. He certainly does not subscribe to the belief that a knowledge of Spinoza or Kant should be inculcated into every undergraduate. He simply calls for an attitude of intelligent discernment.

This can best be cultivated by intelligent reading and discussion. It can certainly not be produced by a study of medicine, classics, physics, engineering as long as it carried on with the object of turning out an expert, and this path is narrowly adhered to. Even a profound study of law or philosophy, if they be taken merely from the expert viewpoint, will not endow a man with the discrimination and complete relevancy, which are the ideal fruits of a university education according to our journalist.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The opening session of the Mock Parliament was held last night. Great enthusiasm was evinced. Both Parties had canvassed for support days previously and the result was that many ardent adherents filled the benches on both sides of the house. In fact a lack of chairs made itself felt long before the government and opposition had marshalled their full forces. It is to be hoped that this condition will be remedied before the next session.

The session was an extremely lively one. The points of order were numerous, and some of them appears to mere laymen very involved. The speeches were of a very high calibre. In fact the first sitting proved beyond possibility of doubt that both sides had developed their policies with diligence and had made a careful study of the rules of procedure.

Elsewhere in our columns are announced the plans for two tournaments, the Chess tournament and the annual Billiard tournament, arranged for by the Union House Committee. The latter should prove extremely successful this year, considering the number who have entered for it and the excellent arrangements which have been made. Competitions such as these serve to popularize the Union. Not that it needs to be popularized, in the sense that tourist agencies use the word; but the Union's atmosphere (it is difficult to define) increases in direct proportion to the number of those who frequent it. Now that smokers have somewhat lagged it is indeed cheering and augurs well for the future of the Union that clubs should organize competition and generally help to maintain the Union as a meeting place.

JUNIORS TO PLAY TO-NIGHT AT RINK

More Support Is Needed For These Games.

To-night the Junior hockey team enters the list in a deciding game. The Panthers, an exceptionally strong playing organization will be their opponents. If the Juniors lose, all chance of the championship will be lost to Old McGill—surely a situation that should be if possible avoided.

Up to this time the Junior team has received very little if any support from the rooters of their Alma Mater.

Nothing is perhaps so encouraging to a team is to play with the shouts of "Come on, play up" and the echoes of M-C-G-I-L-L ringing in their ears. The Junior team would play at least 50 per cent better if they received one eighth the support given the Seniors. So let all McGill turn out and root.

The Juniors have been practising faithfully and well during the last week and should put up a sterling game. The price of admission is small and those who pay it will be amply recompensed by the exhibition.

SWIMMERS STAGE STIFF PRACTICE

Someone Needed Who Can Do Long Plunge.

The Swimming Club held a most successful practice last night. There was a large and enthusiastic turnout, and the work was both instructive and entertaining.

Winter, Patten and Fisk especially displayed good form, and displayed a high standard of ability throughout the evening. Their time for the fifty yards was well under thirty seconds, and if these men continue to show such speed they will undoubtedly be a most valuable asset to the team. Mention must also be made of Laidley, Parsons and Blinn, whose performances in the breast stroke are most praiseworthy.

After their workout the men had a scrub, polo game, which proved highly interesting, and developed some good team work on the part of Fisk, Parsons and Winter, who reportedly broke through the opposition. After this Coach Rose gave the men a short talk on efficiency in swimming.

The next practice will be at 7.30 p.m. on Tuesday. All those who have any aspirations regarding the inter-collegiate team are reminded that time is getting short, and that this will be their last opportunity. The executive particularly hope any one who can do the long plunge to be present at the next practice, as this is the teams weakest point.

One week from Saturday (to-morrow) McGill meet M.A.A.A. in a swimming tournament. Tickets will be for sale at the Union on Monday.

COMMENCEMENT OF CHESS TOURNAMENT

Regular Tournament To Be Followed—Special Handicaps For Beginners.

The following are the rules for the chess tournament which commences to-day:

The first round must be played by Feb. 13. Games may be played any time or at Monday night meetings. The result of each game is to be written down and left at the Union addressed to the secretary. Entry fees if not previously paid must be handed in with the result of the first game.

Regular tournament rules apply. A piece if touched must be moved. If this would mean an illegal move the king must be moved. No concessions to be given or taken.

Players in Class A will give to those in Class B the handicap of removing his kings bishops pawn. The "B" man has the white pieces and first move.

Players in Class A when playing those in "C" will remove a knight but will have choice of pieces.

Players in Class B when playing those in "C" will remove his kings bishops pawns and play with black pieces. White moving twice consecutively and counting as his first move.

One game will decide the winner unless otherwise agreed by both competitors.

The following is the drawing for the first round:

L. Goldman (B) vs. G. Kutzman (C).
D. H. McDougall (A) vs. P. Brault (A).
R. C. P. Webster (B) vs. D. Cowan (C).
E. Liersch (B) vs. L. Rutenberg (B).
S. Held (B) vs. M. Elleson (A).
M. N. Labell (B) vs. A. L. Gnaedinger (B).
L. K. Greene (A) vs. S. E. Petersen (C).
B. Glickman (A) vs. Cartwright (C).
T. W. Crestoll (C) vs. R. Duberger (A).
G. Gilbert (A) vs. N. Enzer (A).
H. S. Jordan (A) vs. D. Rothschild (A).
W. Davidson (C) vs. F. G. Gauthier (B).
J. Singer (A) vs. K. W. Huxten (B).
N. Silverman (A) vs. D. MacNaughton (A).
C. Harris (B) vs. M. Crestoll (B).

do the long plunge to be present at the next practice, as this is the teams weakest point.

INAUGURAL GATHERING OF THE MOCK PARLIAMENT

The last few years, Canada had risen greatly in the estimation not only of other countries but of herself as well. One of the greatest factors that enabled Canada to weather the storm was unity of purpose, and this same unity of purpose and harmony of action must be retained at the present time if we wish to cope with vital modern problems as successfully as we have with former ones. He pointed out in his closing remarks that Canada must be carried on into a new era that should be more glorious than any preceding period in her history.

At this point in the proceedings, Mr. O'Brien rose to state that a certain gentleman then occupying a seat in the House had no right to be there. The Speaker asked the gentleman to explain who he was and what was his constituency. The gentleman stated that his name was J. Clarke Hyde, and that he represented Harvard University. At the command of the Speaker, the clerk of the House then consulted the register, and finally stated that Harvard University was not a Canadian constituency. Thereupon, the gentleman left the House.

The Leader of the Opposition then spoke. He criticized the speech from the throne in that it was lacking in points of fundamental interest and importance. Instead of referring to such questions as Agriculture, Conservation of Resources, Banking and Public Health, the speech dealt with peanuts and the clearing away of fallen leaves. Concerning the question of "Proportional Representation" the latter had been tried in England and had failed. On Taxes, the two parties were agreed to the extent of the necessity of levying the maximum possible to meet war debt. But the Constitutional Party would never support such an obvious error as a levy on Capital. With reference to Labor, the danger of conceding too much in the way of short hours and big wages was exemplified by the case of bricklayers and other working men in the City of Montreal, who were in some cases earning more than qualified professional men. Coming to the League of Nations, an unqualified support of it would mean disarmament of the British Empire. (Cries of No! from the Government benches.) The Constitutional Party favored supporting it as an experiment only. As regards the Liquor question, the Government had no right to interfere except to abolish the public bars. Lastly, the Government must keep clear of big financial schemes, such as the acquisition of railways.

The speaker ended by again calling attention to the omission of matters of importance from the speech and by stating that his party would introduce bills on Banking and on the Patent and Copyright laws.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Farthing, replied to the speech of Mr. Biggar, Leader of the Opposition. He congratulated the Opposition on their wise choice of a leader. He then proceeded to give a short history of both parties, but, by a point of order, was made to adhere more closely to the speech from the throne. On resuming, Mr. Farthing remarked that the Opposition seemed to be afraid of having their past programme brought to the attention of the House. He said that the Government had tried to eliminate from their platform all matter that was not directly controversial, and accused the Constitutionalists of adopting a conservative attitude. Their platform, he said, was neither definite nor consistent, and displayed a total lack of sympathy with labor and trade unions. He explained briefly the attitude of the Government towards social unrest and towards taxation, and concluded by saying that the Cabinet favored equal pensions for all ranks, and was unanimously in support of the League of Nations.

Mr. Labelle, of the Opposition, then rose, and remarking on his right to do so, spoke in French. He desired that the speech be adopted with the exception of a certain clause.

In the course of certain remarks about a point of order, a member of the Government stated that Mr. Labelle represented St. Vincent de Paul. The Leader of the Opposition rose and stated that this was not the case, and Mr. Labelle asked that the member be removed from the House. The member thereupon withdrew his statement, and the incident ended.

Mr. Barre then congratulated Mr. Hackett on being elected Speaker to the "House of Uncommons." He remarked on the splendid measures embodied in the speech from the throne, and said that the prevalent tide of progress had reached even the Arts Building, where electric lights had been installed in lieu of gas. He deplored the fact that no steps had been taken to suppress gum-chewing and examinations.

Both parties approved heartily of his remarks. He said that the Government was especially interested in Progressive Labor Legislation, and questioned the truth of a statement made by the Leader of the Opposition regarding the condition of wages and working hours among bricklayers. He pointed out that bricklayers were not leading the luxurious life the Leader of the Opposition had suggested.

Mr. Freeman, of the Opposition, then appealed to the Government to be original in their policy and not be con-

COST OF HIGH LIVING PROBLEMS SOLVED

The gloves on sale Saturday at $1.69 represent most unusual value in these days, when raw material and factory costs are continually advancing.

The problem of maintaining a steady supply of good merchandise at prices within the reach of those whose incomes have not increased has been met only through constant watchfulness. Department buyers seize small opportunities and since "money a mickle makes a mickle" several small purchases gathered together makes a big offering possible. This sale of gloves is an instance—there are samples from Perrin's and broken size ranges from other good makers and from our own stock.

The underwear at $1.98 is another example of waterfulness in order that we may help to cut clothing costs.

Get it at a very early date.

McGILL AND VARSITY IN BASKETBALL

Second Intercollegiate Game Of Series

AT CENTRAL "Y"

Dad Lamb Confident In The Abilities Of the Team.

Next Saturday afternoon, January 31, McGill will play her second intercollegiate game—this time with her time-honored adversary, Toronto. The game will be played in the Central Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, at 3.30 p.m. This game will mark the crisis in McGill's basketball history of 1919-20, even as the McGill-Varsity game marked the climax in the record football season just past.

In the international revival of sports just witnessed after the finish of the war, basketball has received a decided impetus. The interest in the game has been increased in common with the other competitive sports.

McGill in the past has had several victories to her credit, and this year should be no exception. The team that will defend the honor of the Red and White is shaping up well under the capable coaching of Art Walsh and Dad Lamb.

A good practice was held yesterday in the Y.M.C.A. Gym, where the match will be held. Art Walsh set the men at shooting from the sides and the ends and practicing various combinations in passing. Running shots were tried, and as were given a chance at close basket work by running the men in circles, each man catching the ball and shooting as he came under the basket. Dad Lamb is well satisfied with the way the team is whipping into shape, and is confident that they will prove a match for any team in the Intercollegiate League.

This match will be keenly contested, and it is desirable that McGill should be backed to the full by the students. Make this a record attendance—crowd the Y.H. to the limit, and cheer for the Red and White! This is the only time that Toronto will compete in Montreal this season, so don't miss the opportunity of seeing this game; it will be worth seeing!

C.O.T.C. BANQUET IN UNION TO-NIGHT

G.W.V.A. Band Have Volunteered Their Services.

Among those at the C.O.T.C. Dinner this evening will be a number of the McGill Grads prominent in military circles:

Col. Cameron, O.C., St. Anne's Military Hospital.

Col. Elder, O.C., No. 3 Canadian General Hospital.

And also Lt.-Col. Cery, O.C. 13th Bn. R.H.C. and O.C. 87th Bn. C.G.G., who has just returned from a course at Cambridge, will be present.

Out of fairness to the committee in charge all those who have signified their intention of going and have not bought their tickets as yet, should do so this morning.

A good attendance is promised for

M.A.A.A. BEATS MCGILL WHITES

Game Lost By Loose Play in Second Innings.

In the closest game of the season, McGill Whites were defeated last night by the M.A.A.A. nine. The game was fast and furious, and the spectators were kept in suspense until the final score had been concluded with the score keeper.

Wilson pitching for McGill was responsible for the score of the M.A.A.A., which, with the exception of the second innings, was exceedingly low, low, and he was well backed up by the good fielding of the rest of the team. In the second innings M.A.A.A. broke away to a spurt, and broke so successfully that by the time McGill had recovered they were fourteen goals in the rear.

Careful batting and excellent fielding brought the score up steadily, until at the beginning of the ninth, the score stood 17-20 for the M.A.A.A. McGill went to bat amidst bursts of cheering from their team and hooting from the janitor, closed the gap up to one run lead for M.A.A.A. With all the bases full, Thomson hit a fly, whereupon the three runners all started for second base, and a double play resulted, leaving McGill losers.

The sides were very even and the teams both played good baseball. Thomson, crane and Wilson playing particularly well for the Whites, while Parks and Glickman shone for M.A.A.A.

The M.A.A.A. gymnasium is just a trifle smaller for baseball though it is better lighted than the High School Gym, and as a result the ball picked Indian clubs and dumb-bells from the floor and made hits rather uncertain, but the fastest team certainly won.

CAFETERIA.

Owing to the large number who will likely attend the C.O.T.C. Banquet in the Union, the Management of the Cafeteria feels that it will not be able to do justice to both supper and the Banquet too. Therefore it has been decided to serve no supper in the Cafeteria to-night, and the Management trusts that its patrons will not be inconvenienced very greatly.

The lecture on Battalion Medical Officers by Lt.-Col. Scrimger, V.C., at Theatre A, New Medical Building and at Lt.-Col. Creelman's lecture on Artillery organization in Room 33, Engineering Building. Both lectures take place at 5.15 p.m.

The Infantry Drills will commence next week under Sergeant-Major Brunelle as instructor.

The G.W.V.A. Band has very kindly volunteered its services for the Banquet and will render selections several times during the dinner.

Sekoyd will propose the toast to the health of the Corps Commander, Sir Arthur Currie.

UNION DANCE TO ESTABLISH A PRECEDENT

Special Decorations Have Been Arranged For the Evening.

BERLINER'S TO PLAY.

Supper Will Be Served To All At One Time—Nothing Spared To Make Dance a Success.

One week from to-day will be held the finest dance that has ever been held at McGill. The Union Dance will be run along entirely new lines and will establish a precedent for future Formal Dances that will be hard to break. The music, catering, decorating, and programme arrangements will all be of the highest standard, and no expense has been spared to make the Union Dance a success. Union Dances of former years are still talked about; this one will never be forgotten!

The most important part of every dance, outside of your partner, is the orchestra. It was only with great difficulty that the services of the Berliner Symphony Orchestra were secured. This organization is in constant demand at the Ritz and at all the most elite society balls where expense is no object and it was necessary to place the order a long way ahead in order to secure their services for the Union Dance. This in itself is an excellent recommendation for the music, but the fact that the Berliner Orchestra played by special request for the Prince puts it in a class by itself. The Orchestra consists of eight pieces and their time for dancing is unparalleled.

The Supper will be served to all at one time so that no dances will of necessity be lost. The music will not start again until the last have been served. This arrangement was considered to be a better one from the dancers' standpoint than distributing supper over several dances. The catering is in the hands of one of the best caterers in the city and a supper equal in every way to the rest of the appointments will be served.

Palms and ferns will make the sitting out places cool and restful, and flowers will be used to decorate the damask-covered tables. Attention to the comfort of the dancers in small details like these show how thorough the House Committee have been in their plans for the Annual Dance. To render the Lounge Room cosier than ever the fireplaces have been specially fixed to burn wood logs, and will be lit for the Dance for the first time. The floor will be in excellent condition and to add to the gaiety of the scene special lighting effects have been installed.

The Subscription List is now open to McGill Graduates so that those of the Undergraduates who have not yet secured their tickets should do so at the earliest possible moment, for delay may mean disappointment and none should miss this premier dance of the year. The subscription price is $5.00 and the list is open at the McGill Union. Remember the date, Friday, Feb. 6!

ANNUAL TO BREAK FROM OLD TRAILS

McGill Annual Boasts No Peer In Any College in America.

Judging almost solely from appearances this year's Annual promises to be one of the best yet published, both from the point of view of art and of interest. There have been on unprecedented number of illustrations entered, which should satisfy the most artistic, while on the other hand the written material will be most interesting and most comprehensive in its scope.

This has been a great year at McGill, possibly the greatest in its history, and the Annual Board assures us that "Old McGill" will be in full keeping with the record happenings at the University. Just to show that the Annual is absolutely up to date, an innovation has been introduced which should find favor with all. The editors have decided to break away from the gray and sombre cuts of former years and are inserting colored prints, varied in hue, and far above the usual standard.

We are also told that the frontispiece will be a revelation to many. The McGill book is usually far above others in this respect, but we are advised that as far as previous editions have been superior to their contemporaries, just so far will this season's yearly be above former productions.

TICKETS FOR GAME.

No tickets for Varsity-McGill game can be obtained at the Union after 11.00 a.m. Saturday 31st. Also uncalled for tickets will be transferred to Arena at that hour.

APPEAL MADE TO MEN'S GENEROSITY

McGill Students Are To Be Canvassed By Class Representatives.

The Y.M.C.A. of McGill University is to launch its annual financial campaign next week. Preparations are now going forward to supply the necessary agencies for the ingathering of the many shekels that are expected to flow from the bulging pockets of students and professors—for none escapes!

The "Y" has been giving of its best to the students thus far in the college year; and now it is the students turn—for the "Y" has no secret treasury on which to draw. The McGill "Y" is strictly a students' organization, independent of the Metropolitan system and separate from it. A fixed amount is contributed by the Metropolitan Board annually for its support, and apart from this the sole sources of income for the general service is the student and professorial body of the University.

Among the services rendered by the Association during the year may be recalled: the securing of rooms and boarding houses for scores of students at the opening of the college year; receptions for new students; conversate and skating parties; Thanksgiving dinners for out-of-town students; series Withrow on sex problems, the series just completed by J. Stitt Wilson on social Christianity, and others by such men as Dr. Grenfell, Kenneth Saunders, and B. C. Sircar; Bible classes and Sunday evening sings. During the last term the Hospitality Committee was organized and introduced many students to homes in the city, thus opening the way for a fuller enjoyment of their sojourn at McGill. At all times, too, Strathcona Hall has been open for the use of individuals, clubs or societies of the University.

The Association works a twenty-four hour day; for when Strathcona Hall is in darkness the work goes forward in the McGill Y.M.C.A. In Ceylon, where two McGill men have been in charge for several years, and to the support of which the students have contributed about $700.00 annually. This amount (which should be increased to $1000.00) will be included in the budget called for next week, a total of about $4000.00. There will be, therefore, only one canvass made this year instead of two as formerly.

In past years, great interest has always been taken in the annual billiard tournament, and it is likely that this year will be no exception. The tournament will begin as soon as the handicaps, of which Mr. Charles Stewart, a former McGill billiard champion, is in charge, have been adjusted. Probably arrangements will be completed some time next week. Every effort is being made to assign as fair handicaps as possible, and it is hoped that all will be satisfied.

Each contestant pays an entrance fee of fifty cents. From the total proceeds three prizes will be procured for the three most successful competitors. A vigorous fight is promised both for the championship and the prizes.

SIMPLE DIRECTIONS TO BE FOLLOWED IN INFLUENZA CASES

A return of the uncommon form of influenza that carried off many thousands in 1918 has been dreaded ever since last spring. Now that a disorder very much resembling this one has made its appearance in the Middle West, and New York, the most reassuring thought possible to present is that epidemic recurrences commonly take a form much less severe than the original. This rule may not work invariably. In the present case at least it bids fair to hold good. The reports from the region of prevalence do not indicate anywhere near the fatality that attended the epidemic of 1918. The race accustoms itself to epidemics in their first attack; renewed assaults cannot again take it by surprise or sweep it down.

(By A. F. Currier, M.D., New York.)

The symptoms of influenza are sore throat, and great prostration. The symptoms suggestive of grippe, redness of the face, running of the eyes, chill, headache, backache, and other pulse is slow and the fever runs from 101 to 104 F., there is often a harsh cough with very little expectoration, and as complications there is often bronchitis or broncho-pneumonia. The mild cases last two or three days and recover rapidly; the severe cases are quickly fatal. In the cases in which there is high fever there may be fever sores on the lips, but seldom are there digestive disturbances.

When one is attacked he should go to bed at once and send for his physician. If the fever is high the case must be regarded as a serious one until the temperature becomes normal again, and this may come about quite suddenly.

The convalescent period is of great importance, and carelessness and neglect at that time may lead to the development of fatal pneumonia. Particularly it is imperative to keep one's house warm, and exposure to chilliness is frequently a bid to an attack from this disease. Rigid precautions as to coughing, sneezing, and blowing the nose are of extreme importance, for nobody can tell how many bacilli are thus liberated to float in the air and be inhaled by anybody who comes along.

Some Simple Remedies

The treatment of influenza and its complications include measures that are preventive as well as those to be used during and after the disease. Treatment by vaccines has been extensively tried, vaccines being laboratory preparations reduced to a solution and injected into the veins. One form of this solution is obtained from freshly killed influenza bacilli, and another from a mixture of the bacilli of influenza and pneumonia, with streptococci. Thousands of people have been treated with one or the other of these solutions, but the evidence is by no means conclusive that they are of much value. The most that can be said of them is that they probably do no harm.

Simple remedies of treating influenza are large doses of bicarbonate of soda, inhalation of salicylate of ammonia through a suitable mask such as that devised by Dr. Beverly Robinson, and the free inhalation of oxygen.

Important Directions
The serum treatment of influenza or its complications means the injection of blood serum, obtained either from human beings or animals, into the blood vessels or tissues. This treatment has had a fair amount of success, especially in those cases which were complicated with pneumonia. Fresh air, sunlight, freely open bowels, simple and moderate diet, and a daily warm bath to keep the skin in good condition may be mentioned as measures which should be observed by everybody. One should keep away from crowds and crowded places as much as possible. Three drugs may be used freely, when indicated, as tonics for the general condition—cod liver oil, quinine, and strychnine.

With the return of this disease in its epidemic form it becomes very important to attend to those requirements by which it may be prevented or at least mitigated.

MCGILL SKI CLUB TO HOLD COMPETITIONS

A Chance For All To Show Their Ability.

A "GREEN RACE."

An Invitation Sent To Dartmouth To Come To Montreal.

The McGill Ski Club will hold a meet on Saturday afternoon, January 31st, and another practice on Sunday morning, February 1st. On Saturday afternoon the members will meet at the Lookout at 3 p.m., and on Sunday morning at the same place at 11 a.m. The ground is very fast, so that everyone will have an opportunity to show his skill. Members of the committee will be there on the watch for likely skiers.

Those members of the club who have never taken part in any competition should grasp this chance, practically the last they will have before the competition for beginners, which will be called the Green Race, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 7th. This race will be over a course from 3 to 6 miles over the mountain. Everyone is asked to take part. The men for the cross-country race at Dartmouth will be chosen from the contestants. Five medals will be given for the first two places among the beginners. Don't miss it! As soon as possible we will hold the jumping contest for beginners. You all have a chance to win recognition. This run will thus give the less perfect skiers prizes to work for, as well as the more proficient. There is no clique in the McGill Ski Club. The club does not want affairs run by a few and for a few. The club wants everyone to help manage the business and then all will be satisfied. Don't stay at home and criticize. We want your active co-operation.

An invitation is being sent to Dartmouth to ask them to compete here on the 19th, 20th and 21st of February. Arrangements are being made. Williams, Colgate, Middlebury are also to be invited. This will be the first intercollegiate tournament of this kind to be held at McGill. The executive and committee of the club is busy trying to make arrangements worthy of the occasion. Still nothing very definite can be decided until we hear from the American Universities.

Several likely men for our team have had unfortunate accidents lately, but they will be all right by the 12th of February. We have a number of good jumpers, but we have had no opportunity to learn of our long distance runners, except through reports which cannot be relied upon. The picture of the club taken last Saturday has turned out splendidly. Any who wish to obtain a picture can go to Rice's Commercial Dept. and see the proof. They can give their names to Anderson or Wilder, Glen or Macklaier. The majority of the club have never been out at the same time. Make this Saturday an exception. Prepare for the 7th of February.
